Test Preparation

Decide which test to give. If not able to make up your mind or having perplexity then get counseled. Most commonly given international entrance tests are GRE, TOEFL, GMAT, IELTS, SAT I and SAT II. These tests depend on the country you want to go to. Normally for the English language proficiency TOEFL or IELTS is given world-wide.

Choosing a University

Different countries have different pre-requisites so it is important to check with the university you are applying to. Particularly you should know about work experience, financial, academic, language requirements, climatic conditions, job opportunities after education, facilities provided. Choosing a university also plays a very important role because in many countries changing to another university afterwards is a difficult task.

Visa Formalities

Every country has its unique requirement for the visa. There are many formalities to be completed. Before getting the rejection on visa it's always a wise choice to have a consultation done.

GRE® Graduate Record Examination

Crucial for applying to graduate schools. The test is available throughout the year. There are two types of GRE – one being General Test and the other is Subject Test. Each computer-based test section has predetermined criteria, that includes the question types and the subject matter. In calculation of the score, the statistical trait of the questions answered correctly and incorrectly with their difficulty levels are considered. There are two sections – verbal and math and the test score range is 130-170 on each section. While the writing assessment is measured separately on 6 point-scale bases. The test score is valid up to five years.

Accepting the GRE® General Test Is a Good Business Decision

You are able to enter into the business schools by writing the GRE General Test. There are major world ranked universities all over the globe that accept the GRE General Test score for MBA programs.

TOEFL- Test of English as a Foreign Language

TOEFL measures the ability of non-native speakers of English to use and understand North American English as it is used in college and university settings. The test is available round the year. Almost all the major universities in the world accept scores of TOEFL for admission in the graduate school. The TOEFL iBT consists of four sections: Reading, Listening, Speaking and Writing. The test is not computer – adaptive. There is no computer tutorial. The test is approximately of four hours.

GMAT® - Graduate Management Admission Test

This test gauges the applicability of students for the advanced study in business and management. The test is not entitled for computing personal skills, performance on job, organizational skills, etc. The GMAT measures the capacity to utilize the skills in mathematical section and in verbal section that have been taught in the school. The test is taken year- round. The total score is out of 800. There is no good or bad score on GMAT. The score ranges from 200-800. The GMAT is one of the requirements for the admission and not only the requirement. Any graduate can write this test. Usually, many business schools demand GMAT score along with TOEFL score.

SAT – Scholastic Aptitude Test

Those who are planning to go to the USA or Canada or Singapore for pursuing the under graduation should write the test. The minimum qualification required is 12th grade. The test has three sections – Writing, Critical Reading, and Mathematics. The test is out of 1600. The test score is valid for five years.
